Amanda is a manager in the business services division and has over 20 years experience working in public practice. Amanda joined Kidmans Partners in 2015 as part of the merger of Harmon Partners. She has a passion for detail and seeks to assist clients and find answers and solutions which take into account their individual situation. Amanda has experience working with clients in a number of industries, including professional services and medical practitioners. She also works with a number of high net wealth individuals and investors, covering both business services and SMSFs.

In her free time, Amanda enjoys embarking on new projects and teaching herself new skills – from plumbing to sewing. She also enjoys spending time with loved ones, especially the four-legged kind and is regularly drawn into tax discussions with her Dad.
